Summary

This was a magnificent project. I liked to see my students learning and enjoying what they learn. This project provided me the opportunity to interact more with the students. They were excited doing something that was different from the norm. The class divided into three teams and the students got to know each other better. They learned how to go out to a restaurant as a group and enjoy themselves. Also, they learned how to be in a restaurant situation by themselves and not be frightened. Usually when a student comes to this country, they are isolated from friends, family and familiar surroundings. This project "forced" them into becoming friendlier with their classmates outside of the classroom environment. It also showed them how to trust themselves by using their new language. The project showed them how to be independent and they learned how to accept constructive criticism. For example: if a student did not know how to say something in English another student in the group would aid them. This helpful assistance did not result in anyone being embarrassed because everyone was in the same situation. In fact, the students made inquiries as to what their next assignment will be. To the students this was a covert operation and they enjoyed the experience and journeying into the unknown. This project also placed them in a safe situation. They were not afraid to experiment because they knew they could come back to the classroom with questions and discuss any difficulty they might have encountered.

Side note:

-The project was so exciting that it became contagious, other teachers asked what the project was and they incorporated the program into the curriculum – the instructors' feed back was extremely positive.

-One of the students obtained a job after interviewing the manager.

This project is designed to break up into smaller assignments.

This project takes about four weeks (5 hour per week) if you are incorporating it with regular class assignments.

This project will take only one week, if it is the only assignment you are working on and few activities are omitted.

Hint: Be prepared for the students to resist initially. They are about to embark on a new adventure and fear of the unknown is prevalent.

Students may sense your fear and resistance to change. Be aware this can prove to be uncomfortable for them and you.

Be excited and complimentary, which will return positive results.

Solutions to Problems

Explain how the project improved your students' English language acquisition? Which activities were most helpful?

- 1. The students were placed in positions that necessitated the use of the English language.
- 2. Their assignment was to go to an American-style restaurant.
- 3. Their assignments were tailored to:
 - initiate conversation
 - ask questions
 - listen to responses
 - take notes
 - read the menu
 - design a menu
 - role play
 - order from a menu
 - obtain a menu
 - brainstorm

The activity that was most helpful was that the students had to go to a restaurant and acquire a complimentary paper take out menu. If they could get the original menu that the restaurant offers to their customers, that was a real achievement. In order to make sure their competitive spirit did not become illegal (stealing a menu) they had to have a signed permission slip from the person who gave them a menu. Once they had the menu they came back to class, talked about their experience and practiced ordering.

How was student attendance impacted by the project? Explain.

- Students' displayed an overwhelming enthusiasm to be part of the "big" project.
- They were aware that their fellow students were going to talk about their experiences the next day.
- Attendance was high and the spirit of competition became part of the scenario because each student wanted to "show off" his or her acquired menus.

Describe how the students organized to accomplish team goals.

- The goal was to create independent ideas, critical thinking, organization and leadership qualities.
- An explanation and meaning of working as a team was initiated
- It was necessary to establish a captain team atmosphere
- Students were informed as to what was expected of them.
- They were to design a program on how they wanted to approach "their project"

Would you initiate another project-based activity in your class? Why or Why not?

- Certainly, I would initiate another project-based activity in my class!
- Creating a project acts as a stimulus for a class.
- As a teacher you become more creative in your class work.
- You have an abundance of material you gather from your students, with an interchanging of their ideas with yours.
- The feedback is wonderful, instantaneous and very spontaneous.
- It takes the formality atmosphere out of the everyday regular teaching methods.
- You can bring "fun" back into learning.
