Meet the New Director of the Florida Literacy Coalition

Greg Smith was recently appointed to the Executive Director position of the Florida Literacy Coalition.

Greg comes to the Coalition from the Literacy Council of Northern Virginia (LCNV), where he served as Executive Director of the oldest and largest literacy organization in Virginia for the past 12 years. LCNV’s services included volunteer tutoring programs, family literacy and ESL classes and computer learning centers.

In announcing the appointment, Coalition President Linda D’Olympio said, “Greg’s background and experience are ideally suited to the Coalition’s needs. We welcome Greg and look forward to further growth and future development of FLC programs and services under his direction.”

“The Florida Literacy Coalition offers an impressive range of programs and services. It’s a privilege to join the Coalition’s efforts in support of the many outstanding adult and family literacy initiatives located here in Florida.” reports Smith.

Greg and his wife Sharon are the proud parents of two children, Ethan age 9 and Kathryn age 5.

Originally from Rhode Island, Greg received his BA in Political Science and Public Administration from Providence College and an MS in Adult and Continuing Education and as a member of Virginia Board of Education's Adult Education and Literacy's Advisory Committee and the National Program Accreditation Task Force of Laubach Literacy Action and Literacy Volunteers of America.

Greg has been active with a number of state and national literacy organizations serving as President of the Virginia Literacy Leadership Council, Legislative Chairman and Board member of the Virginia Association of Adult and Continuing Education and as a member of Virginia Board of Education's Adult Education and Literacy's Advisory Committee and the National Program Accreditation Task Force of Laubach Literacy Action and Literacy Volunteers of America.

Greg and his wife Sharon are the proud parents of two children, Ethan age 9 and Kathryn age 5.

Originally from Rhode Island, Greg received his BA in Political Science and Public Administration from Providence College and an MS in Adult and Continuing Education from Virginia Tech.

Greg has been active with a number of state and national literacy organizations serving as President of the Virginia Literacy Leadership Council, Legislative Chairman and Board member of the Virginia Association of Adult and Continuing Education and as a member of Virginia Board of Education's Adult Education and Literacy's Advisory Committee and the National Program Accreditation Task Force of Laubach Literacy Action and Literacy Volunteers of America.

On June 18th, Governor Jeb Bush announced the annual winners of the Governor’s Family Literacy Initiative in Tallahassee. The Governor and First Lady hosted a breakfast for the funded organizations at the Governor’s mansion. Guests enjoyed a southern breakfast in the Mansion’s formal dining room then adjourned to the living room for the press conference where Governor Bush and Lt. Governor Brogan both spoke about their support of literacy initiatives. A surprise visit by Clifford the Big Red Dog capped off the event.

“Today, more than ever, literacy is the key to opening up the doors of opportunity and achieving success in life. If we are going to ensure that all our children are reading at grade level by 2012 then we must ensure that parents are able to read to them at home,” said Governor Bush. “These literacy programs have made a tremendous difference in our communities and neighborhoods. They are dedicated to helping families understand that the home is the child’s first school, the parent is the child’s first teacher.”

This year, 15 public and private non-profit education and community organizations will receive family literacy grant awards totaling more than $700,000. Each organization was eligible for up to $50,000 per program. The 15 winning grant recipients are a diverse blend of community- and school-based programs. Programs include partnerships with such groups as libraries, elementary schools, universities and community-based organizations. All programs incorporate components to teach adults improved reading skills and include measures that assist parents in teaching their children reading. Over the past two years, the Governor’s Family Literacy Initiative, in conjunction with the Florida Literacy Coalition, has awarded $2.25 million to start or expand 45 family literacy programs in our state.

Ms. Kelli Pitts, a student of the Families Read On Grant (FROG) program - a family literacy program housed in the Franklin County public library and funded last year by the Governor’s Family Literacy Initiative - spoke about the programs benefits to her family. “The literacy program has helped me and my son. I can’t imagine a better gift than to know I am going to help my son be successful in school.”

Also during the event, Carnival Cruise Lines presented The Florida Literacy Coalition with a check for $100,000, the first installment of their multi-year commitment of $1.2 million to continue family literacy grants and to assist with the distribution of “I’m a Reader” kits, through the Governor’s Just Read, Florida! Initiative.

All eligible applications were reviewed by a panel of educators from the Florida Literacy Coalition, the Barbara Bush Foundation for Family Literacy, and by the Executive Office of the Governor. The highest scoring applications were then forwarded to the Governor’s review panel, a mix of business and literacy leaders in the state. The panel review members were: Scott Ellington, chairman, Governor’s Family Literacy Initiative Committee; Ron Drew, vice president, Verizon Communications; Benita Somerfield, executive director, Barbara Bush Foundation for Family Literacy; Doreen Outler, grant manager, South Florida Annenberg Challenge; Jack Newell, executive director, Region One Literacy Center, Leon County Schools; Teresa Hernandez, public relations consultant, Washington Mutual; and Stephania Feltz, a 2002 Governor’s Family Literacy Grant recipient.
Meet the 15 recipient programs of the 2002-2003 cycle of The Governor’s Family Literacy Initiative, a diverse blend of community and school-based programs from all over the state of Florida.

Country Oaks Summer Reading Program
“COLOR YOUR WORLD WITH BOOKS”
Washington County, FL

The first session of the Country Oaks Summer Reading Program, a community literacy event for all ages, was a huge success. Sixteen children from grades 1-6, two nursery age, four teenagers, and eight adults participated on June 6th. A great time was had by all. The goal of the Summer Reading Program is to keep the family learning together during the summer.

Sponsors for this program include Americorp VISTA, Country Oaks Learning Center, Literacy Volunteers of Washington County, and the Washington County Public Library System.

Washington County Sheriff’s Deputy Rick Young actively involved the children during his presentation on how they should react when approached by strangers in the schoolyard, home, and most everywhere else. He chose to read aloud one of the books available for participants to check out, There’s a Monster in My Bathtub...the children were enthralled as well as the adults. DARE bracelets were presented to all in attendance.

Teenagers and parents from the community presented a skit about FLYP (a “Wolf” character representing the Florida Library Young Program) introducing his friend Chris to the library/learning center. They put a lot of effort into the extremely well received presentation.

The children were able to check out 5 books and were requested to write a book review on at least one. All were assigned library cards for the Country Oaks Learning Center. Contact: Mary Ann Pelletier, Program Director, at (850) 638-1231 for further information.

FLORIDA LITERACY COALITION IS PARTNER IN A NEW FAMILY LITERACY INITIATIVE: PHONE LINE STORY TIME

As part of the Florida Literacy Coalition’s family literacy partnership with the Governor’s office, the Coalition helped organize a visit to the Orange County Public Library by Rod Paige, Secretary of Education, and Governor Jeb Bush. The Governor and Secretary Paige’s visit was an opportunity for literacy to take center stage. Secretary Paige was in Orlando to present the State of Florida with a check from President Bush’s Reading First initiative, the cornerstone of the No Child Left Behind Act of 2001. Florida is the first of three states to be a recipient. Florida is receiving $45.6 million the first year and a total of $300 million over six years. The federal funds will go to improve reading practices in public schools for grades Kindergarten through third grade. Governor Bush took this opportunity to unveil his newest program to encourage families to read together - Phone Line Story Time! Governor Bush and Secretary Paige joined a group of young readers in the children’s wing of the library to personally demonstrate Phone Line Story Time, the new statewide hotline featuring a different story read by a different all-star reader each month.

To kick off this newest component of Just Read, Florida! the Governor passed out the Barney book, A Tent Too Full, and dialed the toll free number. Together, Secretary Paige, Governor Bush and the 14 children all read along as they listened to Barney read the story. A mixture of local guests including Orange County Chairman Crotty, Orlando Mayor Glenda Hood, friends and staff of the library, and family members of the children watched the reading event. To the whole room’s surprise, Barney himself made a special appearance!

The all-star reader himself gave a high five to the Governor’s new Phone Line Story Time. Parents and children can call toll free to Phone Line Story Time at 866-246-3272.

For more information on Phone Line Story Time, visit the Florida Literacy Coalition’s website or Lesa Kramer email kramerl@floridaliteracy.org.

LITERACY PROGRAM RECEIVES NATIONAL AWARD COLlier COUNTY, FL

The Collier County Public Library Literacy Program has been awarded a 2002 Achievement Award from the National Association of Counties (NACo). This award program recognizes counties for improving services provided by county government. In existence since 1970, it honors county government initiatives that improve service delivery, achieve cost efficiencies, improve customer service, and help to develop a better trained work force. NACo maintains a database of these successful initiatives to serve as a source of ideas for member counties.

The Collier County Library Literacy Program is proud to be recognized for its part in promoting responsive and effective county government.

New Research:
Using Multiple Intelligences Theory in Adult Literacy Education.

The National Center for the Study of Adult Learning and Literacy recently published the first systematic research study on the application of Multiple Intelligences (MI) theory in adult literacy education.

The study was prompted by four well-documented needs and conditions in the adult literacy field.

- A high incidence of learning difficulties among adult learners
- Low self-efficacy among adult literacy learners
- The need to improve learner retention rates
- Limited professional development opportunities for adult literacy educators.

Through classroom based research, the study documents how MI theory is a useful framework for developing lessons that offer students a variety of ways to learn and demonstrate their understanding. The findings suggest that teachers’ MI focused instruction paid off with high levels of student engagement. Among MI inspired instructional practices, project based learning resulted in the highest levels of authentic instruction. Even when projects were limited in scope, they related directly to student experiences. The study also showed that MI theory also made topics not grounded in students’ lives more meaningful because students were able to approach activities from their preferred and strongest intelligences.

The report entitled Open to Interpretation: Multiple Intelligences Theory in Adult Literacy Education is available online at http://ncsall.gse.harvard.edu or by calling (617)482-9485.

National LLA and LVA: Merger Update

Washington, D.C. - As of this issue of The Literacy News, Laubach Literacy International and Literacy Volunteers of America, Inc., are within the final stages of formally completing the legal merger process. The formal announcement of the launch of the new organization, ProLiteracy Worldwide, is expected to be released in September.

With the formal announcement there will be exciting information regarding launch events at four regional trainings that are being sponsored by Verizon Communications.

Mark your calendars for the ProLiteracy Worldwide Conference to be held November 14 - 17, 2003 in Washington, D.C.

Check the next issue of The Literacy News for information regarding closure of the merger and launch plans!

PBS - GED Online

The PBS site (www.pbs.org/literacy) offers a great online approach to students across the country without access to regular classes, a volunteer tutor, or who want support for the GED or workforce classes in which they are enrolled.

The online lessons are designed to supplement textbooks that go with the courses. The online instructor asks what computer skills the student has and explains what class assistance is available. Regular email correspondence is encouraged so that the instructor can highlight, underline, or emphasize important sections in lessons. In addition, email allows for exchange of photos, files, and websites.
