Building Partnerships and Community Collaborations with Certified Domestic Violence Centers

Survivors of domestic violence often face many challenges for which access to quality adult education to can play a significant role. You can be part of the solution in helping survivors gain crucial skills to improve their circumstances and achieve economic self-sufficiency.

Join the Florida Literacy Coalition (FLC), Florida Coalition Against Domestic Violence (FCADV), and ProLiteracy for a webinar to learn more about an exciting pilot program opportunity. This webinar will focus on how domestic violence and adult education programs can build partnerships to support the successful transition of survivors of domestic violence to traditional adult education and literacy programs, grounded in the survivors' educational goals.

This webinar will provide:

- A brief background on adult education and domestic violence, and a collaboration between FCADV and ProLiteracy that has existed throughout Florida since 2014.
- Information on why partnerships between adult education and domestic violence programs brings value to your community
- Strategies for building effective community partnerships
- Case studies of successful partnerships

Pilot Project Grant Opportunity

We're excited to announce the availability of five mini grants of up to $3,000 to provide resources for the development of local cooperative partnerships that benefit survivors and adult learners. We welcome creative approaches and will provide application details during this webinar. Projects must include a collaboration between an adult education/literacy program and a local certified domestic violence center, serving the same community/counties. Session attendees will be given preference during the application selection process.

We encourage you to reach out ahead of time to see if potential partner organizations may be interested in attending the webinar. Click here for list of domestic violence centers and the counties they serve.
